Property Description

On this property, you can live in a home with a wide valley view in Costa Rica, eat the fruit from your own trees, and enjoy the income from a business that won't run you ragged. From this property you will have views of Mt. Chirripo, Costa Rica's highest peak, and the night lights of the city. Importantly, access is easy on a paved road. By car or public bus you can go to stores, events, celebrations and offices in one of Costa Rica's three largest cities, San Isidro de General, in just a few minutes. After a slowdown due to the economic downturn of several years ago, the area is once more attracting outside interest and development. Foreigners are drawn to the higher altitude's fresher air where you won't need A/C, the proximity to a city with all the resources and services you'd need, and access to southern Costa Rica's beautiful uncrowded beaches within an hour's drive.
