A private world, made of natural and spontaneous elegance, which comes with a fine collection of antique European furniture. A noted German architect created the various spaces using Costa Rican hardwoods and artisans. This massive property was designed for the Countess of Baillet-Latour and it has over 43,000 square feet of total construction area. The estate is surrounded by a twelve foot tall wall for maximum privacy and is accessed through an electronic gate. The mansion offers three separate living spaces, a main house and two Guest Houses. An additional 300 m2 guest house is offered on a separate deal along with additional land outside of the walls that surrounds the mansion.
